WHAT IS THE AGING AND DISABILITY RESOURCE NETWORK?

The Aging and Disability Resource Network (ADRN) is a professionally staffed office that assists seniors and persons with disabilities find appropriate long-term services and supports. The ADRN professionals also help individuals apply for those services that suit their independent living and long-term care needs. An individual will receive as much assistance as necessary to locate and coordinate services.

A limited number of Aging and Disability Resource Centers began in 2003, funded by the federal government. Statewide ADRCs began in 2007, as a result of funding provided by WV Lottery Dollars for Senior Services.

Who is eligible for ADRC Services?

ADRN services are available for anyone over 60 years of age and individuals with physical disabilities over 18 years of age (or for anyone acting on behalf of those individuals). There are no medical or financial eligibility criteria.

What Services are Provided?:

The ADRN helps to empower individuals to make informed decisions about their long-term services and supports decisions. This is achieved by providing resource information, coordinating services, assistance with completing applications, and following up to ensure needs are met.

What are some examples of Long-Term Services and Supports?:

Some examples of long-term services and supports are nutrition, personal care, Medicare counseling, medical equipment, and legal assistance.

Is there a fee for ADRN Services?

There is no charge for services provided by the ADRN. Donations are accepted to extend additional services to others.
